

Is France a rainy country?

Let's compare French and Chinese cities .

Discovering a new territory can be stressful in many ways.
This poster questions our vision of the weather through the major French and Chinese metropolises.
The figures show us a strong proximity between the two countries concerning the number of rainy days per year.

We can compare the city of Chengdu to Paris.
However, the climates of the countries are different, with heavy rains in China when the rainfall in France is more spread out over the year.